City Plans Paving 2 Street Projects In North Area

Association Views Building Plans

Hears Law On Sewer Discharge

The Ben Milam Savings & Loan Association's Board of Directors in a meeting Monday evening approved architect's plans for a building for the new Cameron financial institution.

The Association's manager, Roy Engram, said in making the announcement that the building will be located on a site at the corner of North Houston and Second Streets which presently is occupied by two frame houses, one of them in use by the Welfare office.

The new building for downtown Cameron will be 58 by 50 feet and have 1,853 square feet of floor space.

It will be of brick or rock construction, one story, and along the lines of early day Texas architectural design.

There will be wide plate glass windows at the front entrance, but the windows at the sides and rear will be the narrow arched type that were popular for most business buildings a century or so ago. And the flat aluminum roof will be reminiscent of the old galvanized tin roofs also typical of that period.

The building will face on Second Street and be located about 35 feet back of the curb line to permit landscaping of the site.

McLANE CO. BUYS LOCAL GROCERY

Sale of Matula's Red & White to McLane Co. is announced this week by Charles F. Matula and D. R. Laywell, former owners of the supermarket.

The store name will be McLane Red & White, and all former Matula employees will remain, according to the announcement.

A drive - in lane, with entrance on Second Street, will pass along the east side and exit on Houston. A parking area in the rear will accommodate 11 cars.

In its interior design, the building will have a large lobby in the center off the entrance. On the west side the executive offices and conference room will be located. To the rear of the lobby, reached through a short hall, will be the coffee room for employees, storage and rest rooms.

The Association's vault will be located in the southeast corner of the building. Adjoining it will be the teller and bookkeeping section. A window for service to drive - in customers also will be located there.

The firm of Glazbrook & Gleason of Dallas are architects for the new building.

The City Council agreed Tuesday at a regular meeting to use hot-mix asphalt on two upcoming street paving projects, engaging the services of Fred Bandas & Sons, Inc. of Temple to apply the topping.

Council also authorized Water Supt. Alvin Hefft to make arrangements for lab tests on the city's treated sewer discharge, to comply with State law.

Other items on the short agenda included a request by a resident for consideration of his tax rate, and need for a tar pot for the Street Department.

Mayor E. A. Perrin reported to Councilmen on his and Street Supt. James Hale's conferences with both Bandas and Aubrey Slough Construction Co. of Temple. He said Bandas' price for the paving was lower than Slough's.

Bandas was at the Tuesday evening meeting and assured the Council his firm is prepared, on agreed notice, to put the hot-mix asphalt on street surfaces prepared by city equipment.

The hot-mix asphalt topping will be used on Washington and 16th Sts., for comparison with the inverted penetration method used by the city.

Supt. Hefft said the first report on the city's sewer discharge into Little River is due July 25. He added that the city has no facilities for testing the discharge, as required by the Texas Water Quality Board.

Council authorized Hefft to arrange for testing by a laboratory. City is required to pay for the service, estimated at about $150 per year.

Dwight Price, who lives in the recently annexed area on the old Waco highway, asked the Council for consideration of his city tax rate, stating that he was not receiving all city services. Council emphasized that the Cameron

THE FLIP SIDE....

Disc jockeys jargon a lot about "flip side" of a record, meaning the other side of a number played, often also meaning a lesser known meaning opposite a smash hit.

We quote from a letter from a family in California, a mother of a college student, showing the "flip side" and the vast majority side which is altogether different from the campus rebel side we now know too much about.

No need to embellish on the truth. And it is more smashing than comment or anarchy's attack:

QUOTE: The past few weeks have seemed sort of nightmare around here, and I imagine it has been that way all over the country. Stanford (University) looks like the aftermath of a war. It is a sickening sight and I'm afraid that much of the damage was done by outside people (according to many students I know). After they had done as much damage as they could and stirred up the students, they then proceeded to Foothill (College).

"For awhile it looked as though they were going to accomplish the same there. The tension was pretty tight and unfortunately the board of trustees and much of the faculty gave their approval of the strike and condemned Nixon. The two day cooling period that Reagan ordered helped but there were many rumors flying around that weekend. For awhile I almost felt like I was sending off to war each morning. She was threatened many times for not joining the strike.

but somehow she managed to keep her cool. That is going some for because she doesn't like to be pushed around by ANYONE. She pretty much kept to the theatre and was very busy there. Many of the teachers were not holding classes or if they did, they only discussed the Cambodian crisis. I would love to withhold their salaries from our taxes. There were only a few students from the drama dept. who were striking and the drama instructors were very unhappy about the strike. I don't know what their political feelings were but they were only two weeks away from putting on "Alice in Wonderland" and they didn't want anything to interfere. To keep the strikers off their backs, they had to promise to give an extra performance with the proceeds going towards the financing of sending a representative to Washington. They all felt that they were being blackmailed, but they were allowed to proceed with the play with only a few intimations. One week before the play, the agitators pulled a big goof. They burned Nixon, Agnew and Reagan in effigy. Evidently there were some people spotted here and there in the crowds shouting "Burn and Kill". All of the students who were sincere about wanting peace (though confused) became frightened and realized that the mob was close to violence so they left the site and strike. By last Friday there were only 50 known strikers on campus. I'm sure that this same story happened on many other campuses and I hope that there were as many students who had their eyes opened. I am glad that these students became enlightened but she is furious.

Run-Off To Elect Pct. 4 Nominee

Milam County Democrats will vote in Thorndale, Conoley, San Gabriel, Davilla and Sharp Saturday, June 6, in a primary runoff to elect the Democratic nominee for County Commissioner Precinct 4.

Run-off candidates are Mrs. Dora E. McCasland, incumbent, and Dalton Caffey.

Polls in the five southwest Milam communities will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Election judges are asked to call results to the sheriff's office in the courthouse as soon as possible.

Bloodmobile Due Here Wednesday

The Central Texas Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Cameron next Wednesday at Methodist Fellowship Hall from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

Announcement was also made by blood program officials that two temple hospitals, Scott and White and Kings Daughters, are now accepting blood from the Waco Center on a one-for-one basis.

The two hospitals previously required replacement on a two-for-one basis. The new policy will be that the Waco Regional Center will furnish all the blood used by anyone covered under the Red Cross Blood Program on a one-for-one basis.

In a letter to Sister Aloysius, local blood program chairman, Central Administrator Wallace Hopkins said, "This means that you will not have the responsibility of recruiting donors to go to the above hospitals and replace and blood you have used."

This same policy is in effect at M. D. Anderson Hospital in Houston, Hopkins added.

The coverage applies not only to those who live in the county (which is one of 12 making up the Central Texas region) but also to immediate family members, regardless of where they may live.

The blood is free, but the patient or his insurance company pays a fee which covers part of the expense of drawing, collecting, cross-matching, and transfusing the blood. Balance of the cost is met through Red Cross - United Fund campaigns.

Eighty-eight units were donated here at the bloodmobile's March 4 visit, bringing the year's total for Cameron to 267 units. The blood year began July 1, 1969.

Also proposed was a two buck limit for deer and a change in the deer season from the first Saturday in November through January 1, to an opening date of the Saturday closest to November 15 and running through the first Sunday in January.

Moore said it appeared that deer would be plentiful again this season in Milam County. He said the proposed limit would be the same as in the Hill country.

"With the limit increased to two bucks I believe deer hunting would pick up in Milam County in the next few years," Moore said. "The deer in this area are larger than those in the Hill country. Those deer average 60 to 70 pounds dressed. Last year the deer killed in Milam County were well over 100 pounds and I checked several that dressed at from 125 to 150 pounds."

Other proposals read at the hearing were: Outlaw rimfire ammunition or .22 caliber jet or rocket guns in the taking or shooting of, or in attempting to take or shoot, wild deer, wild elk, wild antelope, wild aoudad sheep, or wild desert bighorn sheep.

Open the archery season in all counties.

Outlaw shooting of furbearing animals from a boat on public waters.

Institute an experimental either sex deer hunting season in Bosque, Palo Pinto, Victoria, and Grimes counties.

Prohibit the use of trotlines in those portions of streams bordering a State park or bodies of water totaling less than 500 acres lying totally within the boundaries of a State park.

Change the mule deer season to run 16 consecutive days starting with the first Saturday in December.

Hunters Propose Season Changes

A two-buck limit on deer and longer season for quail hunting was proposed by Milam County hunters and landowners in a Parks and Wildlife hearing Monday in the County Courthouse.

Proposals heard Monday will be forwarded to the Parks and Wildlife Commission for a hearing and action in September.

Milam Game Warden Dale Moore said general feeling of the group meeting Monday was that birds were plentiful as expected this year the quail season should be from December through February 15. Moore said the season for quail previously opened in November, but many hunters felt the weather was too warm for good hunting.

For Town Meeting... UR 'Wrap-Up' Continues

A. W. McCullin, Sr., chairman of Cameron's Urban Renewal Agency, Monday told Cameron Noon Lions he anticipated submitting Part 2 of the downtown urban renewal program shortly after a Council-called "Town Meeting".

Part 1 already has been approved and "wrap-up" work in Part 2 nears completion and will be ready for public review at the Tuesday night, June 16, town meeting.

A total of $617,535 in federal funds, matching $3 to every Cameron $1 in cash or credits, has been designated, awaiting approval in Fort Worth Housing & Urban Development headquarters. An August 17 submission date has been set for Part 2.

Additional money for relocation assistance to affected businesses brings the total to $776,885, McCullin said. In addition, merchants can be helped now by talking to Cameron Urban Renewal officials, he added.

He said nine businesses are scheduled for relocation in "block 14", the block west of Courthouse Square, which will be developed in three parts, to two sides off-street parking and center part mall with walkways, trees and shrubs and fountains to beautify downtown.

He noted Cameron's effort to modernize downtown buildings, streets and curbing came at a time when downtowns generally are eroding in most central cities, small or large.

He said additional growth of other centers would have had an adverse effect on Cameron if the downtown effort had not begun in the early 1960s.

McCullin traced beginnings to a City Council-appointed planning commission in 1964, which developed a proposal leading to appointment of a Cameron Urban Renewal Agency, then headed by now-Mayor E. A. Perrin, succeeded by McCullin, a city mayor in the late 1940s.

He noted a recent audit of Cameron agency funds brought a compliment from HUD auditors to the Cameron Urban Renewal Agency, headed by A. E. Matula.

Money for the city's one-fourth share matching the $617,585 in federal funds is set aside in budget or earmarked in deposits in Cameron banks.

He noted shrinkage of the original area scheduled for rehabilitation because of increased costs. It now encompasses about eight and one-half blocks of the downtown area, approximately a rectangle around Block 14, due for complete elimination.

McCullin emphasized Part 2 is primarily a "formality", approval for which he hoped to receive in Fort Worth within weeks after submitting it. He believed Washington HUD would follow shortly thereafter. This was the case in the approval of Part 1.

The Part 1 is the thickness of a metropolitan telephone directory. Part 2 will include clarification of "rehab" problems and restate "relocation" problems, he noted.

The urban board chairman noted the loss of Monroe Fuchs to the city council and appointment of Dr. George Bowman to the board. Noon Lions president James D. Camp introduced McCullin, Camp is vice-chairman of the urban renewal board.

In discussing the "center block" (Block 14), McCullin referred to engineer's color drawings of the proposal, which is a substantial part of the downtown improvement plan.

Welcome To Folk Fete . . .

Folk Fete dimension is now quite clear to the Milam-Central Texas area.

It is bigger than hoped to start; it attracts considerable professional talent and skilled amateur enthusiasm; it creates interest in the press and electronic media in a wide area of populous Texas.

It is the kind of program which dramatizes the whole rather than the specific; it compels interest of the specific within a broad spectrum.

With good luck, continued co-operation June 12 and 13, and good weather, it might exceed even the most optimistic hope for this Fete of ethnic dance, foods, art - puppet - sculpture exhibit, parade, pageant, belles, beauty contestants. . . from all parts of Milam County and vicinity.

When hundreds of people prepare individually for a program which has never been presented, and its precedent is difficult, if not impossible to find, that program is unique and deserves the public support in whole that it already receives in part.

We say welcome to Folk Fete, June 12 and 13 in Cameron.

Looking For Progress . . . ?

Looking for progress. . . ? The Folk Fete is recognition of where we came from and the assurance we continue area progress in unity.

Expansion of the phone central in the Cameron exchange, expansion of an auto dealership, redecorating of a building exterior harking to 1891, announcement of completion of most items of Part II of downtown urban renewal, pulling down of an empty service station, continued hiring at local and area plants while some areas cut employment

These are signs of progress. Others?

Commitment of new water systems in southwest Milam County and Northwest Milam County, East Bell County are others.

It is easy to find in "Matchless Milam" even though the rural emigration lowered our population 10 percent. Those 20 thousands remaining are busy and building.

16th Century Galleons Sought Off Padre Island

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN

Search for treasure off Padre Island will continue in a big way this summer.

Texas Antiquities Committee granted a reconnaissance permit to the Institute for Underwater Research Inc. to pinpoint locations of additional 16th century Spanish galleons believed to have sunk in Padre area waters.

A giant survey, using geophysical detection devices and scuba divers, may serve as the basis for a state master plan for protection, study and possible future excavation of submerged historic sites.

State agencies, including the Land Office and major universities, will cooperate. Antiquities Committee granted $3,000 to assist Underwater Research, a non-profit corporation financed with private foundation funds. "It sounds good to me," commented Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler, storm center of the controversy over disposition of treasure recovered from an ancient Spanish galleon off Padre in 1967.

Antiquities Committee Chairman Dr. Fred Wendorf said there is good historical evidence that a fleet of Spanish ships was wrecked along the Texas coast in 1553. Committee, Dr. Wendorf emphasized, wants to prevent future looting by profit seekers and preserve remaining ships so that historic data and artifacts may be retained by the state.

Committee also put up $6,000 to hire graduate students to compile inventory of major archeological land sites in Texas. Inventory would enable sites to be nominated to National Register of Historic Places and gain some protection from future destruction.

Wendorf, meanwhile, issued a new statement telling amateur treasure hunters, collectors and beachcombers not to think the Committee is spoiling their fun.

Committee permits are required to dig on state or public land. But activities on private lands are covered only where property is declared a State archeological landmark, and so far none has been so identified.

SCHOOLS TROUBLED

Spokesmen for large, small and medium-sized school districts told a special study committee they face dire financial problems.

Big city districts urged a more-equitable formula for dispensing state aid.

"Small districts have twice as much taxable wealth per student and receive 13 percent more state aid per student," said Dr. Marvin H. Berkeley, Dallas Independent School District President.

Eighteen - member committee headed by veteran Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris was authorized by the last Legislature to study the financial relationship between state and local districts and examine structure of current economic index for schools. In its first session the Committee heard financial woes of Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, New Braunfels and Lumberton school districts.

WELFARE COST SOARING

Predictions about cost to Texas taxpayers of new federal welfare legislation get steadily more alarming.

Senate welfare reform committee was told by its staff chief, Dr. June Hyer, that bills before Congress would increase state spending for medical care of needy by $252 million to $293 million during the next two and a half years.

Welfare Commissioner Burton Hackney said assistance programs can be maintained at present levels until July 1, 1971, only if the Legislature boosts welfare appropriations to a ceiling of $80 million in January. Hackney also saw a chance of getting $8 million in emergency funds through rejiggering procedures for purchasing medicines.

INSURANCE HEARING

State Board of Insurance announced investment income of insurance companies writing auto coverage in Texas and its effect on rates will be the major subject of a special hearing on July 14-15.

Main hearing on statewide automobile rates is tentatively set for August 17. Board promised study and review of the entire rating formula.

AG RULES

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin slapped down Texas Water Development Board's plan to commit itself to the purchase of political subdivision bonds in the future, subject to availability of the funds at marketable interest rates.

At the same time, Martin held constitutional a 1969 statute aimed at authorizing political subdivisions to purchase water development board bonds and sell them at a discount. Opinion put the Board out of water project aid business for the time being.

Martin also upheld the constitutionality of the new destination franchise tax on out-of-state firms selling products in Texas, but said it can't be collected on strictly - mail order businesses.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

*County judge cannot grant misdemeanor probation to anyone who has received probationary sentence during the preceding five-year period.

*Cottonseed in physical possession of Valley Co-Op Mill in Cameron County on January 1 is exempt from property taxes.

*In a county having only a single jail facility, it must be at the county seat.

*County commissioners, by unanimous consent, may allow temporary flooding of a county road if a suitable alternate route is provided.

*State Board of Health may not by rules expand the amount of equipment to be carried by ambulance, but may define minimum contents of first-aid kits.

*Purchases under $2,000 may be subsequently ratified at the county commissioners meeting.

*Board of Examiners in Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids can require recording of aid serial numbers on the bill of sale. Any person who can pass the exam or qualifies under the "grandfather clause" or reciprocity provisions is entitled to a license to fit and dispense hearing aids.

*Lump sum payment in addition to monthly pension can be paid to a retired fireman or survivor if additional payment was adopted at the time he was an active fulltime fireman or prior to that time.

*State Board of Landscape Architects must issue a license without examination to applicants who have been representing themselves as landscape architects for at least three years, if they have defined requirements.

*Trailer type carriers carrying implements of husbandry may be moved up to 50 miles without special overwidth permit.

*When conviction or indictment is set aside, accused regains his civil rights (to vote and serve on juries) but may not truthfully state in job application he has never been "convicted" of felony.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

Now that me and the college students have found out what the word means -- you print something often enough in every newspaper and magazine in the country and say it often enough on television and nearly anybody can catch on -- ecology has become a major issue in this country.

Everybody is using the word, saying this or that will upset the ecology, or the balance of nature. For example, according to an article I read in a newspaper last night which somebody on his way to an anti-litter meeting threw out of his car near this Johnson grass farm, there's a great protest by some people over plans to build an oil pipeline across Alaska. They say if it's built under the snow it'll melt the ice and if on top the moose can't cross it, and Alaskan ecology will be shot.

Another thinker is denouncing electric light poles, saying they're a desecration of the natural landscape.

I don't know about the moose in Alaska, but one of the prettiest sights I've seen is a line of light poles marching across my pasture bringing electricity to this farm. For a man drawing water with a bucket and rope, an electric light pole with wires leading to an electric pump is a thing of beauty. Some people say yeah, but they could be put out of sight underground. It's all right with me, but where are you going to put your television antenna? If something sticking up is unsightly, nature sure made a bust when she made giraffes and basketball players.

Still other people say it's a crime against nature for man to use poisons to kill insects, but they don't seem to be outraged by the poison some snakes and all wasps use against man.

The way it looks to me, it's time the insects and assorted animals started studying ecology along with the college students. Come to think of it, there are times when some college students ain't doing too much to balance the ecology themselves, unless you happen to think unsmashed windows are contrary to nature.

Understand, I'm all for the real anti - pollution movement, but you can carry ecology to some pretty ridiculous ends. I don't care if it does upset the ecology and the entire campus world, when a fly gets in range of me, I'm going to swat him.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

TAR AND FEATHERS OMMITTED BY STUDENTS

Rep. David T. Martin (Neb.) " . . . I would like to call the attention of the House this morning to a very refreshing incident which occurred on the campus of NEBRASKA STATE COLLEGE in my home town of Kearney, Neb., last week, an institution of approximately 6,000 students.

"One afternoon in the middle of the week a group of 10 agitators from a sister institution at Lincoln, the UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA, came to our campus of Nebraska State at Kearney in order to attempt to strike the students to go on strike, and to CLOSE THE INSTITUTION for the balance of this school year.

"With great foresight the students had set up a vigilante committee in order to deal with such situations. This vigilante committee met with these 10 organizers from off the campus at Kearney to listen to their arguments, rejected them, and literally ran them off the campus and out of town.

"Now back many years ago in the Midwest and in Nebraska all communities had vigilante committees but they did not treat them quite so gentlemanly as the vigilante committee did last week at Nebraska State, because the committee did not tar and feather those gentlemen and run them out of town riding on a rail. . .

"I congratulate the students of Nebraska State for their appreciation of the value of an education and their appreciation of the fact that it is an honor and a privilege to attend a college in this country today."

A GRASSROOTS COMMENT

The Akron Beacon Journal reported that, "Jerry Rubin a self-acknowledged freetholder an audience of 1,500: 'Until you people are prepared to kill your parents you aren't ready for the revolution. . . The American school system will be ended in two years. We are going to bring it down. Quit being students. Become criminals. We have to disrupt every institution and break every law. . . Do you people want a diploma or to take this school over and use it for your own purposes?'"

"Those who continue CON-GREGATING AROUND HIS PLATFORM OUT OF CURI-OSITY are, in effect making him legitimate when he shouldn't be. . ."

The professional agitators have used doctors and clergymen as front runners to get attention on national television. Intelligent people, who should know better.

More publicity should be given to the peaceful assembly of students on campus where efforts to hoodwink them has failed.-J.C.

When the American housewife spent $1 on food at the grocery store in 1969 she bought 41¢ worth of products and 59¢ worth of marketing services.

Poage Asks Census For 'Review'

Cong. W. R. Poage said he is asking the Census Bureau for a review of their figures for the Central Texas area, following release of the Bureau's count. "No community in Central Texas seems to have received a satisfactory census count," Poage said in his May 29 newsletter.

Poage said the Census Bureau "naturally feels little responsibility to cooperate with me inasmuch as their supervisors and enumerators were selected by the party presently in charge of the Executive Branch of the government."

Poage added that people who know they were not counted should cooperate, to avoid any "serious omissions."

Although the district showed about a 5% gain, Poage said the strictly rural areas all show losses.

FARM BILL

"Great progress" was made on the general farm bill by the House Agriculture Committee, Poage reported, but he said he will withhold any more comprehensive discussion on details of the proposed legislation until "they are all firmly established."

He said the Committee expects to report a bill which will insure a continuation of "substantially our present level of government payments to producers."

State Ag Producers Lists Milam, Falls On 'Top 10'

Milam and Falls Counties are listed as members of the "Top Ten" producers in agricultural areas, according to Rep. Dan Kubiak.

In egg production, Milam County was 10th with over 4,591,000 eggs produced, Kubiak noted in his weekly newsletter.

Falls County was 7th in 1969 producing 290,000 plus turkeys. Texas was fifth in national turkey production and ninth in egg production.

"In Falls, Milam and Robertson Counties," Rep. Kubiak continued, "we can increase by 100 percent during the next year and become a leader in all of the vital agricultural producing operations. This, along with hog production, cattle production, and feedlot operations, can revive our area."

AUTO INSURANCE

The most "intriguing" problem confronting legislators in Texas on auto insurance is the proposed uniting of private industry on a combination of "fault" and "no fault" insurance, Kubiak said.

Under the present system, consumers must prove the other driver was totally to blame in order to collect liability claims.

Under the "no fault" concept, Kubiak said, liability insurance would cover damages of a person's car no matter which driver was at fault, thus providing the same protection now included in collision insurance.

"In our findings thus far, insurance should be compulsory and proof of purchase would be required each year at tag time, as it is today in many states," he added.

Market Report

There were 500 cattle and 290 hogs consigned to the Cameron livestock auction Thursday according to auction barn officials. Prices paid were:

TOWN and COUNTRY

UP THE ROAD - 3,557 miles on the Alaska Highway is a sign pointing south to Cameron, Texas (second post from right). The direction signs were first installed by road workers in 1942 at Watson Lake, Alaska. Tourist have added mileage signs to their home towns since that time.

ASCS

By Alva E. Sanders

All participants in the 1970 Feed Grain and Cotton Programs who have not reported their acreage are being sent a reminder leaflet on certification and compliance with these farm programs.

It would be a good idea for a farmer to stick that reminder in a spot where it will catch his eye every day reminding him to come in early to the Milam County ASCS Office to certify compliance.

The leaflet reminds farmers that early and accurate certification means earlier farm payments this year. Farm program payments are expected to begin soon after July 1 and be completed by the end of August.

Processing and computing of the total payment earned by a participant is begun as soon as he certifies he has complied with program provisions.

There are four important items for producers taking part in the 1970 farm programs to remember:

Do plant within your allotment, base, or permitted acreage on all farms in which you or your family have an interest.

Do be sure you certify to correct acreage. Once you certify your acreage it cannot be adjusted.

Do not guess your acreage. If in doubt, ask for measurement service. Errors found on spot checks can be costly.

Do not certify if you are not positive that planted, diverted, and conserving base acreages are correct.

It will take producers less than a minute to read the reminder leaflet but it could be the most important minute of their farm operations this year.

Mistakes in certifying compliance can cost farm program participants some or all of the payments they would otherwise earn.

There are instances where the per ton market price of hay has exceeded the price of grain, according to New Holland Division of Sperry Rand.

hospitals, to provide schools and to provide the services needed to perpetuate our society will have to double in 35 years just to maintain the status quo -- unless the rate of population increase is brought to zero. Nor can citizens of the U.S. say that overpopulation is a problem of underdeveloped countries.

As our population increases at a high rate, our consumption of materials per capita is fantastic compared with the rest of the world. The U.S. contains only six per cent of the population of the world, but we consume 35 to 50 per cent of the world's raw materials. We are also responsible for 50 per cent of the world's pollution.

Field Day Set At Stiles Farm

By J. D. Moore

The Stiles Farm Foundation will hold its annual field day on June 16, announces Calvin A. Rinn, farm manager at Thrall. Tours of the farm's crop and livestock enterprises will begin at 2:30 p.m.

On the farm tour, visitors will see new forage grasses being evaluated for use in Central Texas, field-size plots of disease-resistant, cold-tolerant SP strains of cotton, variety comparisons of grain sorghum, new crops having potential for the area such as flax and soybeans, the farm's beef cattle operation and its commercial swine facility.

Information booths will be set up to answer specific questions stimulated by the tour or to give individual counsel to farmers desiring information about crops, diseases, insect problems, herbicides, pasture grasses or livestock.

Texas A&M University research and Extension specialists will be leading discussions at each of the tour stops and will be available for consultation at the information booths.

A pneumatic, precision cotton planter will be on display during the field day, Rinn noted. The experimental planter, which operates on a vacuum, picks up and releases one seed at a time. A formal field day program will be held at 5:30 p.m., preceding an evening barbecue to be catered by the Taylor Chamber of Commerce. The barbecue will conclude the day's activities.

Those staying for the barbecue will need a complimentary ticket. Those in the Thorndale area may get a ticket at Rodenbeck's Feed or Stigalls Store in San Gabriel. Tickets may be picked up at the Modern or Farmers Gin in Buckholts or at the county agents office in Cameron.

Diver's Delight

Half the diving boards manufactured world-wide are made of Douglas fir. This wood leads in ability to withstand constant flexing. No wonder Douglas fir lumber is No. 1 with U.S. builders.

P&W Department Defines New Environmental Terms

AUSTIN
With today's concern over the environment, the public is confronted with a new and sometimes confusing array of terms. An understanding to the problems involved is dependent upon an understanding of this new vocabulary. Here are some basic definitions:

ENVIRONMENT
Quite simply, environment means "surroundings." This includes the living and non-living things which affect our daily lives.

It is the surroundings themselves which are complex because literally millions of relationships between living and non-living things have been formed over the millions of years life has existed on earth. These relationships are commonly called the "balance of nature." Through altering the environment, man has disrupted these relationships that form our environment.

ECOLOGY
Although it has been around for a long time, this word has just recently gained meaning for the broad segment of society. Ecology is the study of living things in relation to their environment. The study of ecology is a significant change from the type of studies which have dominated science for years.

Science for the most part has been concerned with altering or "improving" the environment rather than trying to find ways of living with it. The problems we have today are an environmental backlash in part due to this "subdue and conquer" approach to nature.

BIOSPHERE
The biosphere is that thin zone of air and soil on earth, and for all we know right now is the only one in the universe, which will support life. Earth is probably unique among the planets around our sun to have such a livable zone, but we may be changing that condition rapidly.

ECOSYSTEM
All living and non-living things acting upon each other form an ecosystem.

ECOCATASTROPHE
This is a new word coined after the Santa Barbara oil blow-out, but there are other examples. An ecocatastrophe is a cataclysmic disruption of the ecosystem.

Consequences of an ecocatastrophe may be felt immediately, or generations later. Many of the consequences are predictable, but not always. Scientists can't decide, for example, if the water vapor released into the upper atmosphere by jet airplanes will trap the heat from the sun, causing a "greenhouse effect" which will stifle us, or reflect the heat of the sun causing a drop in the average temperature.

A drop of only four degrees in the average temperature brought on Ice Ages in times past. Whether the temperature drops or rises, the magnitude of the ecocatastrophe involved would probably mean the end of most forms of life on earth.

These first few terms are rather general. More specific terms are used to describe damage to the environment or ecosystem:

POLLUTION
There are many forms of pollution. It occurs in air, water or as noise. Pollution is the addition of substances into nature which have an adverse effect upon life.

We are most concerned with air and water pollution since it is becoming apparent that these substances, quite necessary for the perpetuation of life on this planet, are rapidly being fouled beyond a usable level and beyond their capacity to purify themselves.

THERMAL POLLUTION
Thermal pollution is pollution by heat. The most common source of thermal pollution is from generating plants which use water or cooling machinery. Warm water may offer a variety of threats to aquatic life.

barrier to feeding and reproduction.

PESTICIDES
Perhaps the most serious and subtle form of pollution today is from chlorinated pesticides. Pesticides are chemicals used to kill pests, but the word "pesticide" is misleading. A more accurate term would be "biocides," that which kills life, because many of the pesticides used today are non-selective. For example, biologists believe that the DDT used in the Rio Grande Valley to control the cotton boll-weevil may be "controlling" speckled trout in the Lower Laguna Madre by limiting their reproduction. DDT can also be used to control crabs, shrimp and songbirds and is doing so now and may continue to do so long after even if its use is stopped.

This is because DDT, and the rest of the chlorinated hydrocarbon biocides, are "persistent" which means that because they do not break down in non-toxic substances they will remain toxic for as many as 10 years. They are also "cumulative" in that an organism may store increasingly large quantities of the chemical as it is exposed to it. This accumulation is called "biological magnification."

A hawk which eats three rabbits with the same amount of DDT in each of their bodies ends up with three times as much DDT as one of the rabbits.

HABITAT
Habitat is the type of site which a plant or animal normally requires to live and grow. Biologists are concerned with the destruction of habitats since animals have adapted to a certain type of habitat for centuries and are ill-equipped for a sudden change. Destruction of habitat is both a problem on the land and in the water.

On land wide areas are cleared for agriculture, subdividing, highway building and any other number of human activities occur without regard to wildlife. Channelization, dredging and filling of aquatic habitat virtually assures that the stream or river will produce few fish for generations to come.

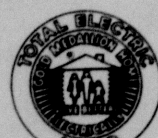

ESTUARY
Perhaps the most important and most productive habitat are the estuaries -- those shallow bays and marshes along the coast receiving fresh water from land drainage. Approximately 99 per cent of the species composing our commercial fish are dependent upon healthy estuaries for either a breeding place, a nursery for their young or production of their food. Killing or destroying the estuaries destroys most of the life in the ocean.

POPULATION EXPLOSION
At the root of our environmental problems is the rapid increase of population. Until this rate of increase is stopped, conservation efforts can have only limited success.

BEACH TAR IS NOT TOXIC, SAYS PARKS & WILDLIFE

AUSTIN

Those globs of tar in the water and on Texas beaches along the Gulf Coast won't affect fishing one way or another, according to Terry Leary, coastal fisheries coordinator for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The tar is not toxic and will not affect sea life. In fact, says Leary, marine life has been found growing on some of the globs.

Leary says high tides last week swept most of the beaches clean, leaving only scattered patches of tar. Beachcombers who come in contact with the tar can remove it with cold cream.

Source of the tar which fouled beaches along the Gulf Coast is still unknown. Leary says that although some of the tar washing up on the beaches from seeps in the ocean floor is natural, the amount has increased in recent years due to accidents and to ships pumping out their ballast in the open Gulf.

20 Must Common Excuses For Not Giving Blood

The Central Texas Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Cameron next Wednesday, June 10. To encourage more persons to donate blood, The Herald is reprinting "The 20 most common excuses for NOT giving blood," from a brochure published by the American National Red Cross.

The brochure answers some of the questions prospective first-time donors may ask.

1. "No one has ever asked me to donate blood."

Consider yourself invited. Blood comes only from people. It can't be manufactured. Your gift could mean life for a sick child, an accident victim, or an elderly person facing surgery.

2. "I gave my blood voluntarily but then Red Cross turned around and sold it."

If you gave through Red Cross, you must be mistaken. Red Cross does charge hospitals for part of the expense of collecting, processing, and distributing the blood. Hospitals often pass this charge on to the patient. Red Cross does not sell blood.

3. "Frankly, I'm scared of giving blood."

Nearly everyone feels that way the first time. Donating blood has become a habit with many people. A few regulars have become 15-gallon donors.

4. "My insurance covers the blood I'd need."

Many insurance policies cover the cost of blood and its administration, but dollar bills can't be transfused. Blood must be available when a patient needs it.

5. "I don't like Red Cross. Why not talk it out with us?"

A Red Cross representative could give you some facts about our services. Blood given through Red Cross is distributed to hospitals. Voluntary donors are needed in every community. We provide the opportunity for you to become a donor.

6. "I already gave this year."

Many donors give three and four times a year.

7. "Other people must be giving enough blood."

The demand for blood and blood products is constantly increasing. The needs of patients must be met by more donors, people like you.

8. "I don't have any blood to spare."

The average adult has about 10 to 12 pints of blood in his body. Doctors say that healthy persons may give regularly.

9. "I'm too young."

You can become a blood donor when you reach 18. Some states require a parent's consent if you are under 21.

10. "My blood isn't the right type."

Every type is the right type. Even rare types are needed all the time.

11. "They wouldn't want my blood because of the illness I've had."

If you have some doubts, check with your physician. However, the staff on duty will review your medical history before you make your donation.

12. "I was pressured to give blood before, and I'm not going to donate again."

Some recruiters, keenly aware of the need for blood, may be a little aggressive. Red Cross can't "pressure" anyone into giving blood. Donations are completely voluntary. Many people need the blood that you alone can give.

13. "My blood isn't rich enough."

A sample of your blood is checked before you donate.

A deal to believe in. From a dealer to believe in.

If it takes value to make you believe in a car, believe in the new Buick Skylark. Every Buick is crafted with integrity. And filled with value.

You get things like a cooling system that should never overheat, even with air conditioning.

You get an automobile so well built that its drive train and chassis are literally tuned to the bias-belted tires that are standard equipment. So that they'll last even longer and provide even greater traction.

One other point. Value also has to do with the man who sells and services the car you buy. Good service can help you maintain the value of your new car.

Check the good deals your Buick dealer is offering right now on the Buick of your choice. If you're looking for something to believe in, you'll find it there.

After all, wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Buick Value/Buick Dealers.
Something to believe in.

Special notice: Prices of all 1970 Opels have been reduced at your Buick-Opel Dealer with no change in features or equipment.

McCollum-McLerran Exchange Vows

Miss Pamela Jean McCollum became the bride of John Harrison McLerran Jr., Dallas, in a double-ring ceremony Saturday May 30, at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church, Waxahachie.

Rev. Sam E. Tullock officiated at the couple's candlelight nuptial rites. Mrs. Roger Corbin played the traditional wedding music and also accompanied the soloist, Jim Freedman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. McCollum, 204 Cumberland, Waxahachie. She was a 1968 graduate of Waxahachie High School and has completed her sophomore year at Howard Payne College, Brownwood. She plans to enroll at Dallas Baptist College in the Fall.

The bridegroom is the son of John Harrison McLerran Sr. and Mrs. Edna McLerran, Cameron. He attended Howard Payne College after graduating in 1968 from Yoe High School, Cameron. At the present time he is employed by Coca Cola Bottling Co., Dallas.

The couple exchanged marriage vows as they knelt at a cushioned white prayer bench placed before a centering arrangement of white gladioli in a Grecian type urn on a white column pedestal. An archcandelabra holding lighted votive candles flanked the flowers on either side.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of brocade white satin trimmed at the high empire waistline and edges of the long tapered sleeves with lace insertion run through with white satin ribbon. The scoop neckline was bound in satin and a small satin bow defined the center front of the gown.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was held by a matching brocade satin Dior Bow enhanced with white pearl drops. She carried a bride's cascade bouquet of white roses centered by a large yellow gladioli.

The bride was attended by Miss Karen Noyes of Port Bolivar, maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Smith of Dallas and Miss Nancy Odum, Waxahachie.

Their identically styled floor length dresses of yellow chiffon over matching taffeta featured long sleeves and Empire waistline highlighted by blue centered daisies. Each carried a nosegay of blue delphinium and yellow pompon chrysanthemums caught with blue bridal satin. Flower girl was Miss Sandy Aydelott of Red Oak and ring bearer was Chad Saylor of Waxahachie.

Kenneth McLerran of Cameron served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Tommy Kirkpatrick, Chapman Ranch, and Billy McCollum, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Marion Cole, Brownwood, David Barrett, Cameron, and Jack McGlathery, Waxahachie.

A reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church honored the couple immediately following the ceremony.

Members of the houseparty included Mrs. Jim Freedman, Mrs. Boy Saylor, and Misses Debbie Roebuck, Debbie Tidwell, Susan Allen, Kettisha Colley, Peggy Evans, Nelda Findley, Jean McLerran and Gay Chancey.

The bride chose a dress of yellow whipped cream fabric with elbow length puffed sleeves trimmed with white lace for the couple's wedding trip. Her corsage was the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. McLerran will be at home, 730, West 9 st., Apt. 9, Dallas.

Following the wedding rehearsal Friday night the bridegroom's parents were hosts for a dinner at Brookside Inn honoring their son and his fiancée. Guests included members of the couple's families and those in the wedding party.

Canners Help Fight Pollution

Increasing numbers of companies and associations are joining to help fight pollution, and among the latest to announce stepped-up research programs to protect the environment is the National Canners Association (NCA), according to Tom Longbreak, Area Extension vegetable specialist at Weslaco.

The NCA, financed by the food processing and associated industries, has made substantial progress over the years in assisting canneries in waste disposal systems and methods. Longbreak noted, adding that NCA's Executive Vice President Nila Smith has emphasized that NCA laboratories in Washington have been working on waste disposal since 1910.

Among recent developments is a continuous process, developed by U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists, for obtaining cellophane from parts of the plant now discarded as waste. Another device has been put into use that will grind waste glass so fine that it may be used as an aggregate in road building. Longbreak said.

"The citrus industry now uses a system of drying the formerly discarded citrus pulp for cattle feed," the Extension specialist said. "A large part of solid wastes of other canneries is being used for cattle feed, either in fresh or silage state."

Each person should remember that everyone is involved in the pollution problem and all must help to solve it, Longbreak said.

Scholarship Program At A&M Aids Ag Students

COLLEGE STATION
One hundred and seventy-one undergraduate students in the Texas A&M University College of Agriculture received various scholarships during the 1969-70 school year.

Dr. H. O. Kunkel, dean of the College of Agriculture, said the awards totaled $75,126.

Forty percent of all freshmen in the college received some financial assistance from scholarships, he said.

The dean pointed out that faculty members, former students and other supporters of the college were among the most active contributors of funds. Other help came from agricultural industries.

Kunkel said the A&M College of Agriculture Scholarship Program was started in October, 1968, to attract outstanding young men and women into agricultural careers, to involve faculty and staff members and other interested groups, and to foster a closer student-professor relationship.

Scholarships are granted on the basis of academic performance, leadership and activities while in high school. Values of the awards vary from $200 to $500 per academic year, with financial need a factor in determining the amount.

For the 1969-70 academic year, more than $9,000 was contributed to the scholarship fund. The College of Agriculture Scholarship Committee awarded 21 scholarships representing nine departments in the college.

"At the end of the fall semester, 1969, these students compiled an enviable academic record with a grade point average of 3.1 on a 4-point grading scale. Two of the students made perfect records in their course work," Kunkel said.

The Little League Indians scored a second win Monday night giving them an early season league lead.

First game of the season for Little League matched the Indians and Yankees with the Indians scoring a 7-5 win. Dale Mueck was winning pitcher and Donald Komar was catcher for the Indians.

that their stupidity (her words) almost jeopardized her school and play and did mess up her studies. I'm even more amazed at what went on in the high schools and Jr. high here. Many of the teachers advocated Nixon's impeachment, and student strikes, and they did this in class, which I thought was against the law. END OF QUOTE.

What began at Berkeley in 1964 has flipped. Were this kind of thing to continue, the absolute opposite of academic freedom, repression, would result. Fortunately are we that more than 95 percent find reason just before this new kind of "torch is passed."

WHIPLASH NECK INJURY

The neck is supported by a column of seven bones called vertebrae bound to each other by muscles and ligaments. The neck is highly flexible and therefore subject to injuries of the type now known as whiplash. While sitting in an automobile the portion of the body below the neck has some support from the seat back. The unsupported and highly flexible neck is often "snapped" when an automobile is hit in the rear by another car.

The bones in the neck may be jarred out of their normal position and cause pressure and irritation on the nerves in that area. Pain, stiffness, and limitation of movement of the neck may result. The chiropractor realigns the bones in the neck thereby removing this irritation which is a basic cause of the discomfort. Many months of unnecessary suffering can be avoided by arranging for a chiropractic examination as soon as possible.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

"Thinking About Drinking"

"Thinking About Drinking" is the title of a booklet which, though designed primarily for youngsters, contains information useful for parents and others.

It was prepared by the U.S. Children's Bureau and the National Institute of Mental Health for young people as a basis for discussion of attitudes about drinking.

"Thinking About Drinking" reflects the latest findings in alcohol research. This research is being carried on and expanded through the efforts of the Institute's National Center for Prevention and Control of Alcoholism.

The contents of the booklet take a look at teenage drinking, presenting an objective, factual picture of various aspects of the matter.

Another important section deals with "Handling your own drinking or non-drinking." This gives information for decision making. Following sections present significant questions on what families, a girl, a boy, or any young person may do in various "if-ly" situations, such as, for example, what does a young person do if he is the only non-drinker at a party where everyone urges him to have a drink?

There is also a "true-false" self-quizz of 19 questions dealing with facts, half-truths, and myths about alcohol. Information for answering the questions is also contained in the publication.

A family that stays together shouldn't... not for more than a week's vacation, that is. We just got back from a two week sun-and-sand sojourn that left us all too weak to face the thought of another family-togetherness venture for a whole year... or maybe a whole generation.

If experience is as broadening as they say it is, I'm ready for a bigger size girle, that's for sure. I've done as much counting as a government census-taker in New York City, thanks to a little game called "divert-the-kids-so-Daddy-can-drive."

The kids and I counted rural mailboxes, purple Volkswagens, brown cows, and U-Haul-It trailers for 2,532 miles. (Did you know that mailboxes outnumber brown cows 10 to 1... which just goes to show that people get more letters than cows these days.)

I've also become adept at smearing sunburn ointment on noses, backs, legs, arms, shoulders, and one bald pate. In addition, I've consumed more hamburgers, french fries, and finger-lickin' goodies than the average drive-in dispenses in six weeks.

But perhaps the best thing about taking the whole family on one great big two-weeks outing is that home looks a lot better when you get back to it than when you left it. Suddenly the whole family appreciates all the little things they have at home that you didn't think they even noticed before.

Take something like sheets, for instance. My husband thinks some of my ideas about keeping house are old-fashioned, and he never could understand why I've always insisted on good old cotton for sheets. But after two weeks of sleeping on other kinds, he's changed his mind. Says he felt like he was the clam at an all-night clam bake trying to sleep on non-cotton sheets.

"There's nothing like the comforts of home," he told me when he got up this morning. I was hoping he'd notice the difference in the way his eggs tasted at breakfast, too... but reading the morning paper does something to his taste buds. Maybe he'll notice how good home-cooked hamburgers taste at supper tonight.
